Allies Brace In Africa, Start Non-Stop French Raid

ALLIED PLANES START GIANT AIR ATTACK

'Biggest' Daylight Bombings Follow Heavy Assaults On Naples, Turin.

U. S. BLASTS ITALY BASE

Smash Ships In Axis Harbor While British Return To Batter Turin.

(By United Press)

LONDON — Allied planes roared over the continent today in a virtual non-stop attack on French objectives, following up blows by the American and British air forces which struck Italy from Turin to Naples.

The daylight attack was reported to be one of the biggest in many weeks—possibly a record-breaker.

It came after long range American bombing planes from the Middle East had carried out their second attack within a week on Naples, the big embarkation port of southern Italy for supplies and men to Africa.

The American bombers reported hits on the Vittoria Emanuele and Vigliena moles and blasted a medium sized merchant ship and other vessels.

Rome admitted that "notable damage" was caused in the harbor area and the center of the city.

The Italians said bombs fell at Frosinone, about midway between Naples and Rome, and at Valdaosta, as well as at Naples.

The attack on Turin, the third inside a week, was made by what the British air ministry called "a small force" of bombers, which carried out the attack despite bad weather over France and northern Italy which gave the crews great difficulty, particularly in locating their objectives over Turin.

Watchers along the southeast coast saw fleets of great bombing planes cross to enemy-occupied territory along with swarms of protecting fighters.

A small force of Britain-based bombers had just fought through 600 miles of bad weather and German gun fire to make the 39th attack on Turin, center of Italian war industry, raining bombs of all weights on the still-smouldering ruins of factories wrecked in

BITTER FIGHT FACES ALLIES NEAR BIZERTE

Axis Army Reinforced Heavily To 28,000 Men; More Troops Arriving by Air.

ROMMEL LINE PROBED

Observers Say Africa Corps Either Outmaneuvered or Withdrawn to Tripoli.

BULLETIN

LONDON — (AP) — Reuters said today that the Rome Radio reported a meeting in North Africa between Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, commander of the British Eighth army in Libya, and Gen. Kenneth A. N. Anderson, commander of the British First army in Tunisia, adding that "this seems to foreshadow concerted action" by the Allies.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON — Confronted with a steadily reinforced Axis army of 28,000, the Allies faced a hard and bloody struggle today in the battle for Tunisia but the first cautious probing of the enemy's newly-established line at El Agheila in Libya raised the possibility that Marshal Rommel might not make a stand there.

The Germans and Italians were pouring air-borne reinforcements into Tunisia to bolster forces already holding the advantage of occupying a well-fortified, compact area.

Dispatches from that North African front showed plainly that the Allies were in for a bitter struggle to win Tunis and Bizerte.

Offsetting the Axis advantage somewhat was the growing Allied air might in Tunisia and the entire Mediterranean area, as emphasized by the one-two punches yesterday in new and devastating raids by American bombers upon Naples and by another attack of

Gona's Gone, Buna's Next

With Gona, New Guinea, in Allied hands after fierce action this week by Australian troops, American forces closed in more and more tightly today around the last remaining Jap base in Papua-Buna. The Allies repulsed desperate Jap counter attacks at Buna and American planes strafed the enemy almost constantly. The above map locates the fighting for you.

ONLY FOUR MEN LOST ON BIG U.S. TROOPSHIP

Navy Reports Former Luxury Liner President Coolidge Hits Mine at Sea.

DOWN IN SOUTH PACIFIC

Exact Location and Date of Sinking Withheld In Naval Announcement.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The navy announced today that the 21,936-ton liner former President Coolidge, fully loaded with an estimated 4,000 troops, struck a mine and sank in the South Pacific but that only four men were lost.

The former palatial liner was the largest American transport lost in the present war, but the navy said that prompt and efficient rescue efforts limited casualties to four men.

This brought to ten the number of American transports lost in the Atlantic and the Pacific, but in each case a loss of life was comparatively small.

The President Coolidge was owned by the American President Lines of San Francisco, Cal., and was chartered and operated by the war shipping administration for the U. S. Army.

The navy gave no details about the scene of the action except that it occurred "in recent weeks in the South Pacific. The vessel, operating as a transport, was fully loaded with troops and equipment when it struck a mine and sank," the navy said.

"Through prompt and efficient rescue efforts, casualties were limited to four men."

Master of the President Coolidge was Henry Nelson, of San Francisco, who survived the sinking.

The Coolidge was completed in 1931 at Newport News, Va. Its length was 615 feet and it had a beam of 81 feet.

The liner apparently was on

COLD WAVE TO ARRIVE TONIGHT

Temperatures to Tumble to As Low as 5 Above, Weather Bureau Warns.

While street department crews were spreading salt and cinders at intersections and other points in the city after a night of minor traffic accidents due to ice and a light snowfall the weather bureau came forth with the warning that a severe cold wave is rolling into Ohio, to be featured by a low of 5 to 15 degrees tonight.

No injuries were reported in a number of auto collisions but police were of the opinion that Herbert G. Hunt, baker at 270 Park avenue east, had suffered severe cuts on his forehead and scalp in a fall on the ice. When found lying on the sidewalk in front of that address at 1:30 a. m. by Patrolmen William Colby and William Taylor he was suffering from loss of blood and unable to explain his injuries. He was taken to General hospital.

"We could fill the book if we wrote up all the minor mishaps of last night," one police officer explained. He said icy spots were hidden by a light snowfall and that motorists experienced great difficulty in negotiating turns.

Howard Shank, truck driver for the W. C. Gump company of Shelby, and his companion, Glenn Colter, were uninjured yesterday

BEAR'S HERO IN TIGER KILLING

Crushes Man-Eater After Beast Claws Attendant To Death.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla.—(U.P.)—A bear at the Clyde Beatty zoo today was given all the attention due a hero after killing a full-grown tiger which a few minutes before had clawed to death a 25-year-old attendant.

The tiger escaped from a pen during the feeding period and pounced upon Wallace Ayers. Ayers was fatally clawed and bitten around the head and shoulders before another attendant, Albert Fleet, could rout the animal with a hoe.

The man-eater then jumped into a nearby pen occupied by the bear, which proved to be its master. The bear crushed the tiger to death in a few seconds.

DEFIES DRAFT

'Objector' Taken to Cleveland For Federal Hearing.

After defiantly advising members of Richland county draft board No. 2, police said, that it would be useless to examine him for possible military service because of his adherence to Jehovah's Witnesses principles, Harmon S. Bradford, 30, of 57 South Walnut street, was taken to Cleveland last night for arraignment in federal court on draft evasion charges.

Bradford was taken into custody by Plainclothesman Howard Schuck at the request of Cleveland agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation after Board 2 members had reported his resistance to the FBI.

Bradford, asserting he is an avowed Jehovah Witness and consequently a "conscientious objector" to military service, spent his time in Mansfield jail yesterday reading tracts published by the cult, police said.

FOUR CITED

Charged With Subversion in Action To Revoke Citizenship.

CLEVELAND — (INS) — United States Attorney Don Miller today filed action against four Cleveland residents to revoke their American citizenship on the contention that they were members of subversive organizations.

The four named by Miller are: Mrs. Josephin Novario, 48, a teacher of Italian at John Hay high school until last year when she was dropped because of lack of interest in the language, Rosario Carbone, 50; Otto Fuchs, 36, and Reinhard Winter, 36.

FBI FIRES AT ORDER TO BATES

Says Former Police Chief In Work 'Necessary, Essential' To War Effort.

Spokesmen for the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Washington today indicated their resentment of Mansfield's Civil Service commission mandate ordering Meade K. Bates to resume his duties as police chief here by Jan. 14 on threat of his forfeiting his seniority or pension rights.

"The FBI feels," a bureau spokesman said, "that Mr. Bates is doing a necessary and essential work in connection with the war effort. If it becomes necessary for him to request his release because the Mansfield Civil Service commission will not grant him a further extension of leave we will have no alternative except to grant the request."

Atty. George W. Biddle, commission president, could not be reached today for an expression on the FBI attitude. The commission on Dec. 1 drafted a letter to Bates, serving since last Jan. 15 as a special agent with the Cleveland FBI office, advising him his leave could not be extended beyond the one-year period terminating next Jan. 14. Biddle explained at that time the action conformed with state Civil Service commission rulings.

Atty. Breen of the state board conceded a few days ago that the local municipal body is not bound by any mandatory regulation although it conforms generally to

14 LANDLORDS FACE CHARGES

Ohioans Cited for Violation of Rent Regulations.

CLEVELAND—(INS)— Fourteen northeastern Ohio landlords were ordered today to appear Dec. 18 for arraignment in federal court on charges of violating maximum rent regulations.

United States Attorney Don Miller said the landlords either demanded more than the legal rent or filed fradulent returns with the OPA, or both. Besides seven Clevelanders and one Akron resident against whom criminal complaints were filed and summonses issued, were the following Canton and Massillon landlords:

Edna Clauss, M. L. Killian, George Zoncouridea, Charles Vignas and Nick Kinias, all of Canton; Harriet Richards, Massillon.

RANGOON RAIDED

U. S. Reveals New Bomb Attacks On Jap-Held Port.

NEW DELHI — (AP) — Twenty large bombs burst among warehouses and a direct hit was scored on a dock at Rangoon, in renewed American heavy bomber attacks against the Japanese in Burma yesterday, a United States army communique announced today.

Hammer Remnants of Japanese Near Buna

Yanks, Aussies Smash Counter Thrusts, Close In on Foe as Planes Strafe Enemy Range Over Lae Base.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(INS)—The navy announced today that army Flying Fortresses have struck at Japanese shipping in the northern Solomons, scoring hits on a tanker and possible hits on a second tanker while other bombers raided a new enemy flying field on New Georgia island.

(By International News Service)

UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA—American and Australian ground troops closed in today on the remnants of the Japanese invasion force around Buna while Allied bomber and fighter planes hammered the enemy positions from the air.

The desperate Nipponese forces attempted several counter-attacks which were smashed by the Allied jungle fighters, strongly supported by artillery fire.

Japanese dead in the day's fighting included 44, and more than 400 bodies were counted in the Gona area after the Japanese were dislodged from this strong-point.

A Japanese force was reported isolated on the Soputa-Sanananda trail two miles from Sanananda. Enemy planes again attempted to drop supplies from the air for the Buna garrison, but it was believed that heavy Allied artillery fire destroyed the bundles droped by the Japanese planes.

After repulsing enemy counter-assaults, Allied gunners methodically smashed Japanese gun emplacements and machine gun nests preparatory to a final attack to drive the Japanese remnants into the sea.

Our attack bombers and dive bombers were active almost constantly over the narrow beachhead still held by the Japanese in the Buna area.

Meantime medium bomber squadrons raided the Japanese base at Lae, raining thousands of pounds of fragmentation and incendiary bombs on the airfield and other military installations.

The Buna airfield was heavily

29 REGISTER

Few Youths In 18 Class File Names at Draft Boards.

When Richland county's three selective service boards closed at noon today they had signed only 29 youths in the day and one-half registration of those who had their 18th birthdays since June 30. This low figure was in line with reports of slow registrations in other counties and states.

While it had been estimated that the county had about 200 in this age group, enlistments in the period just preceding the ban on them is belived to have materially reduced this figure. Several youths of the 18 and 19 age groups who have visited the boards to learn their draft status said they had already made applications for enlistments in various branches before the ban went into effect. Washington officials have indicated that all 18-year-old will be called for service by March.

Board 1 reported 14 registrants, Board 2, 10 and Board 3, five as their totals. Registrations close Dec. 30.

GOING UP?

Price Increases Due on Newsprint WPB Chief Believes.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — An increase in the price of newsprint is belived imminent by W. G. Chandler, chief of the War Production Board's printing and publishing branch.

Notice of an expected increase was given by Chandler yesterday at a closed session of the newspaper advisory committee which discussed proposed curtailment of newsprint supplies in 1943. The present price for standard newsprint is $50 a ton.

WANTS CHANGE

Grange Seeking Return to Central Time.

The Shenandoah Grange last night joined school and farm organizations in proposing a return to Central time and protesting the Office of Defense Transportation order which would require pupils to walk to school if they live less than two miles away or less than one one-half miles from a school bus route.

Meeting in the Shenandoah Grange hall, members of the organization passed a resolution asking the Ohio legislature to return the state to Central Standard time because of the inconvenience of War time to farmers.

Another resolution opposed the ODT order requiring rural pupils to walk to school to save tires on buses and passenger cars. The Grange will submit copies of the resolution to the state legislature and ODT and school officials.

DETROIT — (U.P.) — State Sen. Stanley J. Nowak, 33, Detroit was to be arraigned today on charges of falsely pledging allegiance to the United States while a member of the Communist party.

Nowak, a native of Poland, was arrested last night after a federal grand jury returned an indictment charging him with making the false oath in becoming a naturalized citizen.

GETS SHOE CONTRACT

PORTSMOUTH — (AP) — The Selby Shoe company has been awarded an army contract for 15,000 pairs of service shoes for the WAACs.

Battle-Scarred San Francisco's Home From Fight

SAN FRANCISCO — Battle-scarred but proud, the cruiser San Francisco is home from the Solomons for the repair of damages she suffered while sinking a Jap cruiser and destroyer and starting a Jap battleship on its way to the bottom.

The story of the San Francisco is proof of the navy's way of training men.

A 31-year-old officer, Lieut. Commander Bruce McCandless of Long Beach, Calif., took charge of the vessel, flagship of its task force, and fought the critical moments of a great battle off Savo island in the Solomons early in the morning of Nov. 13.

Command was handed down successively from Rear Admiral J. Callaghan through 11 officers, and by the moment's peculiar demands, finally came to McCandless.

Admiral Callaghan, Capt. Cassin Young, and three commanders were the senior officers. All but one commander was killed and he was badly wounded. McCandless was senior surviving officer on the bridge.

The navy has cited McCandless for the congressional medal of honor.

The San Francisco alone destroyed a cruiser and a destroyer and so crippled a battleship that other American forces later sank it. Washington announced that 23 Japanese ships were sunk and seven damaged in the battle. Announced American losses were two light cruisers and six destroyers sunk, and 13 or 14 ships damaged.

HUNT HIT-SKIP

Truck Driver Hits Hydrant, 'Gusher' Floods Street.

Police today are seeking a hit-skip driver who crashed a fire hydrant in front of 1060 Park avenue west about 11 p. m. Friday.

When Patrolmen William Taylor and Carl Beard reached the scene the street was flooded with water pouring from the hydrant which had been sheared off near its base. City waterworks department workmen were summoned to shut off the "gusher."

Residents of the neighborhood told police that when attracted by noise of the crash they observed a light truck being backed away from the hydrant, and then speed westward. None was able to obtain the license number.

Damage to the hydrant was estimated at $50.

A SHORT SHORT STORY COMPLETE ON THIS PAGE

HANS SCREAMED, "LIFT, LIFT HER, KURT—THE MOUNTAIN."

Escape FROM DARKNESS

By L. PAUL

The people were gunning for Hans—the last of six leaders—A dramatic peek into the future!

HE WAS known to six great men as Hans. They were now dead. He was a twisted little man whose brain, aiding these six, had put the steel spines and the hatred harder than steel into Germans. But the people had changed their sights and, retaining well-taught brutality, they were gunning for their leaders. He was the last leader left.

His small, part-paralyzed body slipped across the great castle hall. Out there in the darkness, like waves on a beach, he could hear, or seem to hear, the surges of marching feet feet that had trampled the great, publicized figures of Nazidom. But he was cleverer. They were coming for Hans. They would not find him.

He had prepared for everything. The plane was ready, a fast two seater. No regular pilot would he trust. But the man who would save him was down below. The two Gestapo thugs who had brought him had been dumb enough to set off on another and pretended mission and had met the mob and certain death. But Kurt was waiting, down below.

The man called Hans saw a flame springing up on the horizon. That would be Goering's hunting lodge—the mob was closer. He walked slowly to the wall where a panel opened on an elevator. He dropped down to damp air and a dim-lit passage cut from living rock. A key, a door; something stirred. He said—"Kurt—Cousin Kurt. Thank God they saved you." The something in the cell replied, "You have killed God, Hans." It was a flat voice.

Hans knew what rigid schooling had bleached the tone. "You remember me," he said softly.

"But you—forgot," Kurt said. "I heard but three days ago. Now you are here. I am not an idle man, Kurt," he continued as if reproaching the man before him for assuming that his affairs could possibly have intruded on one so great, so busy. "You are here," Hans went on. "Risking much I got you out. Even I must walk carefully. Should Goebbels or Goering hear, or Himmler suspect——"

"I can guess."

"But you are here—and not idly. You recall 1939? You, the great engineer, the builder of airports. You came here——"

"With Jewish labor—they were liquidated afterwards."

"But you had built it."

"I built it for the Fuehrer," Kurt agreed, an edge of bitterness creeping into the flat voice. "Then I went away."

"I did not know till three days ago," Hans told him. "In these times men are not units in our memories."

"I lived." Kurt made a slight movement of his hands.

"When I found out," Hans went on. "Well, you are here. Why they put you under protective custody I do not know. I am taking the risk, Cousin Kurt. I am gambling. There will be changes in Germany. If I'm right ——"

"It will now be safe to know me, your cousin?" Kurt broke in bitterly now. "And the changes?"

They could not hear those marching feet, ever nearer. But Hans knew, and said—

"We must go."

"Where?"

"England. You can still handle a plane? You know the way to——"

"I built it," Kurt told him. He seemed to ponder this strange proposal, then came to his decision. "We must go in darkness. That is essential. That was the secret of my camouflage. Follow me."

He led the way into the hall, passed down it, counting his steps, a hand on one wall pressed some hidden spring and went through the door that opened on damp steps cut in rock. Groping, Hans followed, one withered hand on the wall, uneven legs stumbling. He could hear, but could not see Kurt. Now and then Kurt would say "Right here," or "Bend low, roof."

They came out under stars, then around crags with stunted trees for cover, and through short tunnels. Hans could now see dimly the concealed path they followed.

Somehow Kurt's sure, slow progress reassured him. The man who had built this secret way of escape still knew its every inch. He must have the eyes of a cat. As if reading his thought Kurt explained, "I have walked thus a hundred times when I built it for Adolph."

The tunnel dipped into a great cave. Far ahead the floor met sheer cliffs and ended. Farther a star shone over the mountain across the valley.

The plane stood waiting, the first strange thing Kurt had met, but Hans shoved him up and in. The wheels were in deep-grooved tracks, headed toward the star. Hans spun the propeller and Kurt, his old skill not forgotten, nursed the roaring cylinders into lusty life. Hans crawled in behind. The plane began to move down the track, out, out above the valley.

"England!" Hans screamed triumphantly. "England, Kurt, where they do not assassinate!"

The pilot made no reply. The plane flew level.

"England—heaven for you after the prison camp of Gaden!" Hans cried, then screamed, "Lift, lift her, Kurt—the mountain!"

Kurt said, "At Gaden, they put out my eyes."

"He can't tell me the paper shortage is THIS bad!"

Fantasia.

("I've Never Seen a Purple Cow, I Never Hope to See One" —and there are a number of other things I never hope or expect to see, including the following.)

Katharine Cornell, Judith Anderson and Ruth Gordon singing a hot version of "There Were Three Little Sisters" . . . A celebrity named after a Reuben's sandwich . . . Lucius Beebe wearing a zoot suit . . . Otto Preminger running his fingers through his hair . . . Joe Goebbels crooning, "I'm Dreaming of a White Christmas" . . . Milton Berle playing straight man for Henry Youngman . . . Greer Garson as the Other Woman in one of those triangle plots . . . Mayor LaGuardia yelling "Screeno!" at his neighborhood movie house.

No, and I never expect to see George Bernard Shaw munching a hot dog . . . An intimate revue (meaning a ballroom team and a whispering chanteuse) at the Latin Quarter . . . Hope Hampton and Jules Brulatour in the last row of the balcony on a Theater Guild opening night . . . Lawrence Tibbett singing "The Steam Is on the Beam" . . . Olson and Johnson branching out as singles . . . A "Kindly Keep An Eye on Your Hat and Overcoat" sign at 21 . . . Helen Hayes as Sadie Thompson . . . Julie Hayden sporting a feather-cut bob . . . George Montgomery carrying a torch.

It would surprise me to encounter a chorus girl who was born in New York . . . Georgie Jessel without a beautiful belle. . . . Ingrid Bergman wearing blackberry-colored lipstick . . . Barbara Hutton behind the counter at a five-and-ten . . . Toscanini in Lindy's surrounded by songpluggers . . . Leopard spots on the decor at El Morocco . . . Leo Durocher with nothing to say . . . Mrs. George Washington Kavanagh wearing less than three pounds of diamonds . . . Ida Lupino in a film story that wasn't originally purchased for Bette Davis.

I never hope to see or hear of Libby Holman imitating Betty Hutton . . . A waltz contest at the Savoy in Harlem . . . Tony DeMarco taking lessons from Arthur Murray . . . Greta Garbo swinging a sarong in a Bob Hope-Bing Crosby picture . . . Members of the Genius, Inc., squawking about the $25,000 wage ceiling. Charles Boyer as Tarzan . . . Mary Livingston feeding gags to Fred Allen . . . Joan Crawford refusing to sign an autograph for a fan . . . Leon Enken in the spotlight at Leon and Eddie's, singing "She'll Be Coming Down the Mountain" . . . Commissioner Moss yelling "Take it off!"

Among life's improbabilities I would list: Martha Raye as "Camille" and Sophie Tucker as "Peter Pan." . . . Sherman Billingsley sending champagne and perfume to Broadway Rose's Cub Room table . . . Carmen Miranda singing torch songs . . . A Saroyan play that everyone agrees about . . . Shirley Temple as a menace . . . Adolphe Menjou wearing Jerry Colonna's moustache . . . Morton Downey singing "Asleep in the Deep" . . . Ned Sparks, who never smiled again—or even in the first place—starring in "The Life of Don Ameche."

I'd lift startled eyebrows at the sight of: Charlotte Greenwood as Fred Astaire's new dancing partner . . . Helen Menken with a hair out of place . . . Betty Grable refusing to pose for stills that showed her knees . . . Ann Harding with a Veronica Lake hair-do . . . Victor Mature hiding from a camera . . . Tallulah Bankhead speechless . . . An opening night curtain, announced for 8:30, going up at 8:30 . . . The Paramount theater without a jitterbug in the audience . . . A sponsored radio program with fewer than two commercials . . . A Hickory House band featuring continental folk tunes . . . Parking lots for helicopters.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—Walter Huston is a fine actor and he'll give a good impersonation of ex-Ambassador Joseph E. Davies in "Mission to Moscow," but some of us will always regret that Mr. Davies himself couldn't tackle the part. Even in Hollywood, he'd be just the type.

Coons

Mr. Davies has, aside from a remarkable ability as a raconteur, the first requisite for an inspired performance: he is thoroughly in love with his role. The other morning, at an informal breakfast meeting, he held the small assemblage hanging on his words for about an hour and a half, after which he chuckled, caught himself up with "You must forgive me—I find the subject so fascinating myself that I forget I may be boring you."

His tales, unfortunately were off the record, but it is violating no confidence to report that he makes as successful an ambassador of good will from our Soviet allies as he was to them.

"Mission to Moscow" is Warner Bros.' second fling at dramatizing the work of an American diplomat. Early in their career when the brothers were penny-pinching, adventurous independents in the production field, they filmed "My Four Years in Germany," the story of James W. Gerard's World War I mission to Berlin. A timely hit, it served to bring the firm into the financial big time where now it can afford a serious and costly undertaking like the present.

Mr. Davies' book, of course, has no conventional movie "story line," and that was one of the problems facing the producer, young Robert Buckner, and his scenarists, Erskine Caldwell and Howard Kochs. Buckner thinks they've licked it, and the film is under way with Huston as the ambassador and Ann Harding as Mrs. Davies.

The opening sequences are set in the great hall of the League of Nations, June, 1936, on the occasion when Emperor Haile Selassie made his dramatic appeal for his conquered country before the assembly. These sequences, not covered in the book, serve to set the stage. As Buckner says, "We had to choose one dramatic event to name as the real starting of the war, and to go back to the Japanese conquest of Manchuria would have been too involved."

So much authenticity is apparent in the staging of these League sessions that it is like going back through time and space to witness it. A slight stoop-shouldered, ascetic dark man with bushy hair, his fingers meeting as in prayer, pleads with dignity for his ravaged kingdom, and the Axis delegates walk out. Then Maxim Litvinov the U.S.S.R. delegate, takes his place to speak for the security of all nations, large and small. In a few moments it is over, and the Negus is again Leigh Whipper, the Negro actor, and Litvinov is again Oscar Homolka, transformed by make-up.

But for those few moments it is 1936 and Geneva and a dramatic landmark on the road to war.

FDR Plans Christmas Eve Talk to Nation

EDITOR FACES ARREST FOR HIS SCRAP CAMPAIGN

Charge Writer Incited Removal Of Old Guns From Capitol On 'Dark Night.'

(By United Press)

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.—Ralph Coghlan, 46, editor of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch editorial page, faces arrest today because he allegedly incited removal "on some dark night" of three ancient artillery pieces from the state capitol grounds.

An unsuccessful attempt was made to haul one of the guns away to the nearest scrap metal heap early Friday morning and Justice of Peace Foster Wheatley issued a warrant against Coghlan last night on a complaint charging grand larceny.

Sidney W. Stearns, 39, and R. W. Riley, 36, St. Louis tree surgeons who tried to remove the gun—a three-inch field piece used in the Mexican war—were held in the Cole county jail and face preliminary hearing before Wheatley today.

The complaint against Coghlan was based on his editorial, entitled "on some dark night," which criticized Gov. F. C. Donnell for his failure to turn the old cannons over to a junk dealer as a contribution to the scrap metal drive.

The editorial said it would not be "surprising if . . . a group of patriotic citizens . . . would seize the old guns and deposit them on the nation's scrap pile."

Besides the Mexican war cannon, a 1000-pound Civil war muzzle loader and a brass six-pounder gun, dated 1769 and taken from a Spanish fort in the Spanish-American war, were involved.

Coghlan's editorial was in criticism of Donnell's statement of several weeks ago that the cannons were being withheld from the scrap heap because he could not find title to them. Two weeks ago, the legislature passed a resolution vesting title in the state so the donation could be made, but Donnell said the action was illegal and vetoed it. Five other cannons, however, were turned in as scrap.

Stearns told police he took it upon himself to haul away the guns after talking with Coghlan. He said Coghlan "felt it was up to some patriotic citizen to do this job."

"I agreed with him," Stearns said.

ARMY AND FBI PROBING BLAST

Seek Cause of Explosion That Killed Two, Injured Three At Ohio Plant.

KINGS MILLS—(INS)—Army officers and FBI agents today were investigating an explosion of approximately 5,000 pounds of gunpowder at the Kings Powder company which killed two men and injured three others.

A separator and a corning mill, located about 300 feet apart, were blown to bits in the second and third explosions at the plant in three days. The dead were identified tentatively as Hugh Abner, 32, of South Lebanon, and Henry Hacker, 22, of Kings Mills. They were working inside the separator.

The injured were listed by Warren county authorities as Turner Harrison, 50, of Kings Mills, who was seriously burned when a piece of debris ignited his powder-sprinkled clothes as he was working near the separator, Amos Johnson, 35, and Frank Noe, 26, both of South Lebanon. The latter two were reported out of danger.

The explosions were felt as far as Washington, C. H., 40 miles away. Just three days ago 600 pounds of powder exploded, but no one was injured.

On July 30, three weeks after a minor blast, the worst explosion in the plant's history killed five men and injured ten others.

RUBBER PROGRAM MOVING, BUT SITUATION'S STILL CRITICAL

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Rubber Director William Jeffers today reported progress in the rubber program, but warned that the situation still is extremely critical and the greatest possible conservation is necessary.

He agreed with a report by the senate committee investigating the war effort that the problem is extremely serious, but he said in an interview:

"We will do all right in meeting essential military and civilian demand if recent progress can be continued.

"I am hopeful that the War Production Board, the armed forces, and I can arrive at a reasonable determination on the use of critical materials so as not to unreasonably delay the bringing in of synthetic rubber plants. If we don't get the plants running on schedule, we are going to be out of rubber."

President Roosevelt told his press conference the army and navy have final responsibility for determining the relative essentiality of various phases of the war production program.

The studies presumably would include whether strategic materials shall be used in synthetic rubber plants or be allocated to other industries. Jeffers has charged that rubber plant construction was in danger of falling behind due to army-navy priorities on critial materials for other purposes.

He said, however, the initial unit of the first large synthetic rubber plant at Institute, W. Va., should start production within the next few weeks. About a dozen other large plants and a number of smaller ones are scheduled to start over a period of time.

$100 GIFT

Wife of Soldier Benefits by Bank Night Award.

A Mansfield soldier's wife with a three weeks' old son received the first $100 check to be presented by Warner Bros., theaters to a service man or a member of the latter's family each time that the name of a service man is called for the weekly bank night award.

Mrs. Grace Penrod, 219½ West Fourth street, the first winner, received her check today. Her husband's name, Corp. Scott Penrod, had been called one week ago for the $1,300 award but at that time the $100 check ruling was not official.

The gift award had been suggested some time ago by Frank Harpster, district manager for Warner Brothers' theaters, and Gratton Johnson, city manager, but the official approval from the Cleveland office was not received until yesterday.

Corp. Penrod is stationed at San Juan, Porto Rico. He was formerly employed in The News-Journal classified department.

The new bank night ruling stipulates that each week a service man's check is awarded the main bank night award will not be increased for the following week. Last night's bank night award was not claimed.

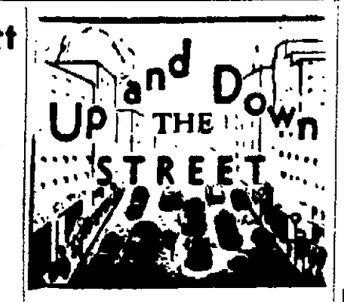
"You should have been here Thursday, she hit it then!"



It's likely that some Richland county folks will receive Christmas cards from men in service that were made in Mansfield by the Junior Red Cross members of Johnny Appleseed and Mansfield Junior high schools. The cards, 400 of them, all designed and executed by the pupils themselves and prepared for mailing have been presented to the Red Cross executive office for shipment to Indiantown Gap in Pennsylvania. Hundreds of holiday menu covers were also made by the Juniors including a special assignment of 1,500 assumed by the John Simpson pupils.

When council next meets it likely will undo some unnecessary legislation passed at a session Dec. 1. At that time an ordinance went through providing appropriation of $3,000 for purchase of a new fire alarm repeater system. Some discussion arose at that time about previous consideration of the same issue but the "fathers" decided no action had been taken. However, a subsequent check of the records by Clerk Robert R. Black disclosed an almost verbatim ordinance had been passed July 7. There was discussion at the earlier meeting of the fitness of incorporating a price minimum for sale of the old equipment. Black says that a survey of ordinances passed over a long period of years shows many duplications.

WHITE HOUSE DECORATIONS TO BE SIMPLE

Holiday Will Find All Sons of President Absent From Washington.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt, it was announced today, will broadcast a Christmas greeting message to the people of the United States on Dec. 24, as he attends the annual Christmas tree "lighting" ceremony on the south lawn of the White House.

This year, however, the "lighting" will be purely figurative, because the need to conserve electricity has forced the decision that no electric bulbs will be used on any of the White House trees.

On the day before Christmas, the president and Mrs. Roosevelt will be present on the south portico of the White House to witness the annual ceremony and take part in the traditional singing of Christmas carols. It is during these ceremonies — to be held in daylight this year as another electricity conservation measure — that the president will broadcast his greetings to the nation.

Unlike past Christmases, Dec. 25th this year will find all the president's sons absent from the White House, as they are with the various branches of the armed forces scattered throughout the world.

On Christmas day, the president and Mrs. Roosevelt and members of the family will attend religious services arranged under the auspices of the Washington federation of churches.

Following long-standing practice the distribution of Christmas gifts will take place in the afternoon, and in the evening the president will carve the traditional Christmas turkey.

After the family dinner on Christmas eve, Mr. Roosevelt will read Dickens' Christmas carol to those gathered at the White House.

In the East Room there will be a tree—much smaller than heretofore—trimmed with imitation snow and white streamers, with no other ornaments. To complete the decorations at the White House, two wreaths will be placed between the columns in the lobby and a spray of mistletoe will be hung from the center light.

Hear Appeal From Death Sentence In Treason Conviction

CINCINNATI — (U.P.) — Three judges of the sixth U. S. circuit court of appeals today hear the appeal of Max Stephan, Detroit restaurateur, from a death sentence imposed at Detroit following his conviction of treason.

Stephan was found guilty and sentenced by District Judge Arthur J. Tuttle, Detroit, Aug. 6 to be hanged for treason for having aided Lieut. Hans Peter Krug, German air officer, flee to the southwestern United States after Krug's escape from a Canadian prison camp.

Stephan contended in his appeal that Krug should not have been permitted to testify as a government witness since he was an officer in the army of the enemy of the United States with whom we were at war.

In his appeal he said that the indictment was not founded on fact, that the evidence failed to support the charges and that the government failed to have two competent witnesses to testify to the same overt act and thus meet the requirements of law with respect to proof of treason.

SEE FRAUD IN LIQUOR RAIDS

Officials Say Clevelanders Tried To Avoid Paying Tax.

CLEVELAND — (INS) — With seizure of 590 cases of liquor in raids on three Cleveland night clubs, federal tax authorities announced the uncovering of a wholesale conspiracy to defraud the government of millions of dollars in liquor taxes.

The confiscated liquor, agents said, had not been reported by retail dealers as part of their inventory when the new $2 per gallon federal tax became effective. Louis Hinton, chief investigator predicted the arrest of several hundred persons.

U. S. TRANSPORT SUNK, 4,000 TROOPS SAVED

route to American South Pacific bases with equipment and troops needed in the battle against Japanese forces in the Guadalcanal and New Guinea areas.

Presumably, the 4,000 troops already have been dispersed into South Pacific bases since the sinking occurred.

To date, five transports have been lost in the South Pacific, virtually all in connection with operations in the Solomons area.

Those lost in the Pacific were the Little, the George S. Elliott (former City of Los Angeles), the Gregory and the Calhoun.

In the North African invasion, the navy announced the loss of five transports. They were the Tasker H. Bliss, Hugh L. Scott, Edward Rutledge, the Joseph Hewes, and the Leedstown.

The loss in the North African invasion was slight in troops because most of them had debarked for the African coast before the vessels were struck by submarine torpedoes.

Meanwhile, recent Japanese activity in the central Solomons raised the possibility today that the Nipponese are building airplane landing strips and bases there to renew their attacks on Guadalcanal and to protect their larger northern installations against American sea and air assaults.

During the past month U. S. planes from Guadalcanal have intercepted several Nipponese warship flotillas in the New Georgia area, about 150 miles northwest of Guadalcanal, and American aircraft have made several raids on enemy concentrations on this island.

Ever since U. S. marines captured the Japanese-built airfield on Guadalcanal, navy men have assumed that the Nipponese would attempt to offset the American advantage by building small airfields either on New Georgia or Santa Isabel island in the central Solomons.

The Nipponese have been active around New Georgia ever since American forces smashed a powerful enemy armada off Guadalcanal Nov. 13-15 and prevented the Japs from reinforcing their isolated garrison on the latter island.

Late in November, American aircraft from Guadalcanal bombed enemy installations in the Munda area on New Georgia island and destroyed all buildings in the vicinity. Subsequently, American planes attacked several Jap destroyer flotillas in that area.

According to naval sources, the enemy long has been handicapped in its assaults upon Guadalcanal because planes had to operate either from Buin, on Bougainville island, or from Rabaul, New Britain.

This meant that bombers from the big base at Rabaul were forced to fly approximately 1,200 miles round-trip and fighters from Buin at least 600 miles in order to attack Henderson airfield on Guadalcanal.

By setting up small airfield facilities in the central Solomons, the trip for fighter planes could be cut in half. Besides, Jap troops based in New Georgia could be moved during the night in speedy boats to Guadalcanal.

In attempting to strengthen and expand their facilities in the New Georgia group, the Japs may also be preparing to ward off the anticipated American offensive against strong enemy bases in the northern Solomons.

Navy Announces 1600 More Casualties

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The navy department announced today that 1,613 new casualties of the navy, marine corps and coastguard were reported to next of kin from Nov. 16-30.

The calualties, which include dead, wounded and missing, brought the total reported to next of kin since the Pearl Harbor attack to 18,838.

Of the new casualties, 546 were reported dead, 660 wounded and 407 missing.

A recapitulation of casualties to date gave the following totals:

Navy: 4,348 dead; 1,434 wounded; 8,473 missing; total 14,255.

Marine corps: 1,114 dead; 1,370 wounded; 1,921 missing; total 4,405.

Coastguard: 38 dead; 11 wounded; 129 missing; total 178.

GROWS GRAVER

Meat Shortage In Detroit Becomes More Acute.

DETROIT—(INS)—The meat situation in Detroit became graver today as many butcher shops reported that even their supplies of hamburger were exhausted.

Unless something happens quickly Detroit after today will have only one packing house in operation. The city has 18 large meat packers and 13 have shut down so far. Four more planned to close today, although some farm-killed beef was reported trickling in from Flint, Saline and Ann Arbor.

The packers asserted that Michigan meat quotas were "inequitable" and that the OPA, in setting the Michigan quota, ignored the huge population increase resulting from the influx of war workers.

HE'S TOO QUICK

PASADENA, Cal. —(U.P.)— When Marion Ostland, returning home, found a suspicious-looking man in her driveway, she told him to leave or she would call the police. He obeyed with surprising and flattering alacrity. The reason for the alacrity, she later found on entering her bedroom, was that he had just robbed it of $25 and other articles.

ALLIES LAUNCH NON-STOP AIR RAID ON FRANCE

Bombing Follows Heavy Attack on Naples, Turin by U. S. and British Planes.

raids Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

The Middle Eastern command announced at Cairo that Allied planes had blasted Naples yesterday.

"Yesterday Naples was bombed," the communique said. "Hits were scored on moles and merchant vessels. Fires and explosions resulted along the entire water front."

American Liberators made the first attack on Naples a week ago yesterday, blasting an Italian naval squadron and opening the promised Allied offensive against southern Italy, and Italy admitted that in addition to great material damage 159 persons had been killed and 358 wounded.

It looked as if today's daylight raids by British - based Allied planes might assume record proportions.

"The roar of planes nearly lifted the roof off my hotel," Jack Chilvers, proprietor of a southeast coast hotel, reported. "It was easily the biggest force I have seen pass over since the war started. They were crossing for more than an hour."

United Press watchers reported the formation of bombers and fighters crossed the Dover strait at great height in brilliant sunshine.

Later another big force of bombers and fighters returned to the English coast from the direction of Abbeville in northwest France.

Russians Score New Advance Near Rzhev

MOSCOW —(U.P.)— A powerful new Russian attack has smashed through German defense lines west of Rzhev with gathering momentum, front dispatches reported today.

New gains in the Stalingrad area tightened the Soviet circle around the Nazi siege army.

(The German high command admitted that a large-scale Soviet offensive had been launched with "fresh troops" on the front south of Rzhev. The Nazis claimed they had beaten off the attack which was said to have had unusually strong infantry and tank support).

Front dispatches said the Red army stormed across a water barrier and broke through the first German lines of defense in heavy fighting.

Weather conditions which have hampered operations on the central front were said to be clearing up, enabling low-flying Stormavik attack planes to carry out large scale attacks on Nazi positions and troop concentrations.

Armed Peasants Stage Riots in Italy

LONDON—(INS)—New, authentic evidence of widespread disturbances in Italy, in one of which 40,000 armed peasants were said to have been joined by the local Fascist party militia, was reported today by the London Evening Standard.

The newspaper cited four specific instances of popular uprisings or demonstrations against the Fascist regime.

One occurred at Foggia in mid-September, when 40,000 armed peasants, protesting against lowered wages, were joined by the Fascist party militia in a four-day demonstration that was quelled only when troops were sent from Rome.

A similar three day "revolt" at about the same time was said to have involved 4,000 peasants at Monteleone.

Report Raids Caused Panic at Genoa

RIO DE JANEIRO — (INS) — British air raids on Genoa caused wholesale devastation and panicked the population, members of the crew of a Swiss freighter declared today upon arrival from the Italian port. The ship sailed while the raid was in progress and miraculously escaped damage.

The Swiss sailors said that casualties were extremely heavy because of the lack of adequate air raid shelters.

TWO SISTERS WED BIGAMISTS

Police Uncover Marital Tangle In Rooming House Arrest.

NEW YORK — (INS) — Two sisters one 13 and the other 14, both allegedly married to bigamists and the older soon to have a child, were in protective custody today, one en route to Hartford and the other in a maternity ward.

Predicament of the sisters, 13-year-old Shirley and 14-year-old Estelle Richmond, was brought to the attention of police with the arrest in a New York rooming house of the younger girl and her avowed husband, Valentine Dugan, allegedly already married and the father of a child.

The arrest led to apprehension of a 30-year-old Filipino, Manolo Espejo, accused of marrying 14-year-old Estelle who is to become a mother next month. Espejo, too, police say, already was married when he wed a second time.

when a New York Central passenger train sheared off the front end of the vehicle at the West Main street crossing.

Shank said he was towing a wrecked car but had stopped on signal of the crossing flasher lights, proceeding after a soldier standing on the far side of the tracks signalled it was safe to proceed. When he got onto the tracks and noted the approach of the train Shank attempted to back his truck off the rails but did not clear in time. Witnesses said the weight of the towed truck kept Shank's vehicle from being swung against the side of the train by the impact.

When Don Watson, 16, of 63 Dawson avenue, was unable to stop his car on the ice at Park avenue west and Bowman street at 8 p. m. the car skidded against the auto of County Commissioner Ray Hout who was making a left turn with the green light, police were told.

Collisions were recorded between autos operated by Charles Young, 239 Bartley avenue, and Richard Jacobs, 384 North Townview circle, at Marion and Douglass avenues; Lynn E. Robertson, 495 South Diamond street, and R. L. Foulke, 16 Glenwood avenue, on West Second street; George L. Satterlee, Mansfield R. D. 2, and Royden C. Shafer, Shelby, on North Main street.

Charles Hebel, street commissioner, said every effort will be made today to eradicate danger spots before the return of near-zero weather.

Forcasting a temperature tumble, the weather bureau prediction says "much colder tonight with a cold wave in central and east portions of Ohio, the temperature falling to from 5 to 10 above."

Mansfield has enjoyed a week of comparatively mild temperature following near-zero blasts which came as November faded into December.

attacked. Fires started were visible for more than 30 miles. Direct hits were scored on the runways and dispersal areas, and on machine gun positions and anti-aircraft batteries.

American and Aussie troops were at the very gates of Buna, but were not yet risking a frontal attack against the strongly entrenched enemy garrison. Instead they were making a systematic effort to wipe out Japanese machine gun positions, howitzers and field pieces which formed a strong defensive ring about the coastal village.

The Buna garrison was believed to have been strengthened by troops which escaped from Gona before its fall and made their way down the coast in boats.

Believe Japs Using New Solomons Base

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—A new Japanese air base in the central Solomon islands may now be in operation, naval experts suggested today. The enemy was reported some time ago to be developing such a base to offset American-held Henderson field on Guadalcanal.

Indications that the field may now be in use were seen in the navy's disclosure that an army "Flying Fortress" on reconnaissance over New Georgia island, some 150 miles from Guadalcanal, was attacked by 15 Zero fighters. The Fortress shot down five of them and returned to its base.

Experts, however, considered the Fortress' successful defense of secondary significance to the fact that enemy fighters were present in such numbers. They believed the planes must have been operating from a field in the immediate vicinity.

Japan's nearest known air base to Guadalcanal is in the Buin area on the southern end of Bougainville island, about 150 miles further to the northwest. It is believed to be chiefly a fighter station.

Enemy bombers, experts are convinced, operate from Rabaul in New Britain and, in raids on American positions, usually pick up fighter escorts at Buin. A new field in the New Georgia group would save 300 miles of round-trip flying for the fighters.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, DECEMBER 12, 1942.

Drive carefully tomorrow—and help win the war by doing no unnecessary driving.

Headline: "Detroit War Workers Face Freezing"—but it didn't turn out to be a weather story.

At least they're not telling us that "Of course there's plenty of whisky—it's merely that bromo seltzer must be conserved."

Stored Gasoline Creates Hazard

SO THAT they won't be in position to say they "weren't told," it is being repeated that gasoline illegally stored before rationing started has caused fires and explosions in several cities, and that hoarders are being ferreted out and prosecuted in many places.

Officials in some cities have announced that when a fire breaks out in buildings in which gasoline is stored in violation of law, firemen will not be asked to risk their lives to save the property.

The mayor of Aurora, Ill., expressed belief that half the homes in that city contain stored gasoline and instructed the fire chief to send no men into buildings to fight gasoline fires.

This cautious policy, however, would not be justifiable when fires menace nearby properties, and best procedure would be to make sure, insofar as possible, that no gasoline is stored in homes or adjoining outbuildings.

Ordinarily some other persons know about it when gasoline is being hoarded in their own neighborhood, and a wise precaution would be to immediately notify a fire inspector, or the police, of the fact—after the fire starts, or the explosion occurs, it will be too late.

This is a form of law violation that cannot be safely condoned as being a "personal matter."

Extra Hours and Overtime Pay

GOVERNOR HAROLD E. STASSEN of Minnesota, a Republican leader of rising influence, makes an interesting statement about war wages. He would provide a more flexible working week with limited overtime pay.

There must be longer working hours next year, he says. He wouldn't establish them with a club, but would modify somewhat the extreme overtime pay that has developed in recent practice. He suggests that "hours worked over 40 a week shall be compensated to the extent, and only to the extent, that the individual received time and a half for overtime worked in 1942." Beyond that, and up to 60 hours a week, he would have overtime compensated at "time and one-tenth." Thus, he suggests, working hours could be increased in non-war and non-cost-plus work without changing the price ceilings.

It seems clear to many other people that there is danger of inflation in the present system. Overtime runs too quickly into pay scales so high that they threaten serious inflation and set dangerous standards of pay for war work. All this has to be paid for sooner or later by everybody, and it is to the general interest to hold prices and wages to a reasonable level.

Whisky Rationing Warning Given

ADVANCE warning that whisky may soon come under a state rationing plan may be expected to have the customary effect, in fact the run started a week or so ago when the state liquor control board established the "voluntary rationing plan" of a quart-a-day limit per person—with the hint, however, that a customer could go from one state store to another and get a quart of whisky from each—if he was sufficiently low-down to indulge in such subterfuge.

As nearly as could be observed, there was no quick response to the liquor board's appeal to the fine attributes of patriotism and "fair play"—in fact the whisky drinkers seemed no more thoughtful of other imbibers than did the coffee drinkers who were gobbling up the dwindling supply of that beverage a couple of months ago.

The fact is, of course, that the stored liquor supply is ample to meet all reasonable needs for three years, or more—but not at the rate of sale that has been reached under the stimulus of fear of a shortage, as it has been put into the minds of people by spokesmen of the state liquor board.

So here's another example, if one is needed, to show the ineptness with which preliminaries to rationing have thus far been handled.

Barbers' Union Frowns On Vandalism

ASSURANCE by the president of the local barbers' union that the organization does not approve such acts of vandalism as have been committed at a number of barber shops within the past few nights serves to confirm the belief of many persons that hoodlums, acting on their own initiative, were responsible for these occurrences.

Like any other business or profession, barbering cannot be entirely freed from a small percentage of persons who might indulge in such reprehensible conduct, and the declaration of confidence that "the vandalism is the work of hoodlums in nowise connected with the barbers' union," seems tantamount to assurance that, in the event of any such disclosure, the miscreants would be promptly expelled from union membership.

It would seem the clear obligation of all reputable barbers to co-operate with law enforcement officials in apprehending the guilty parties, so that there may be no undeserved stigma resting on innocent persons.

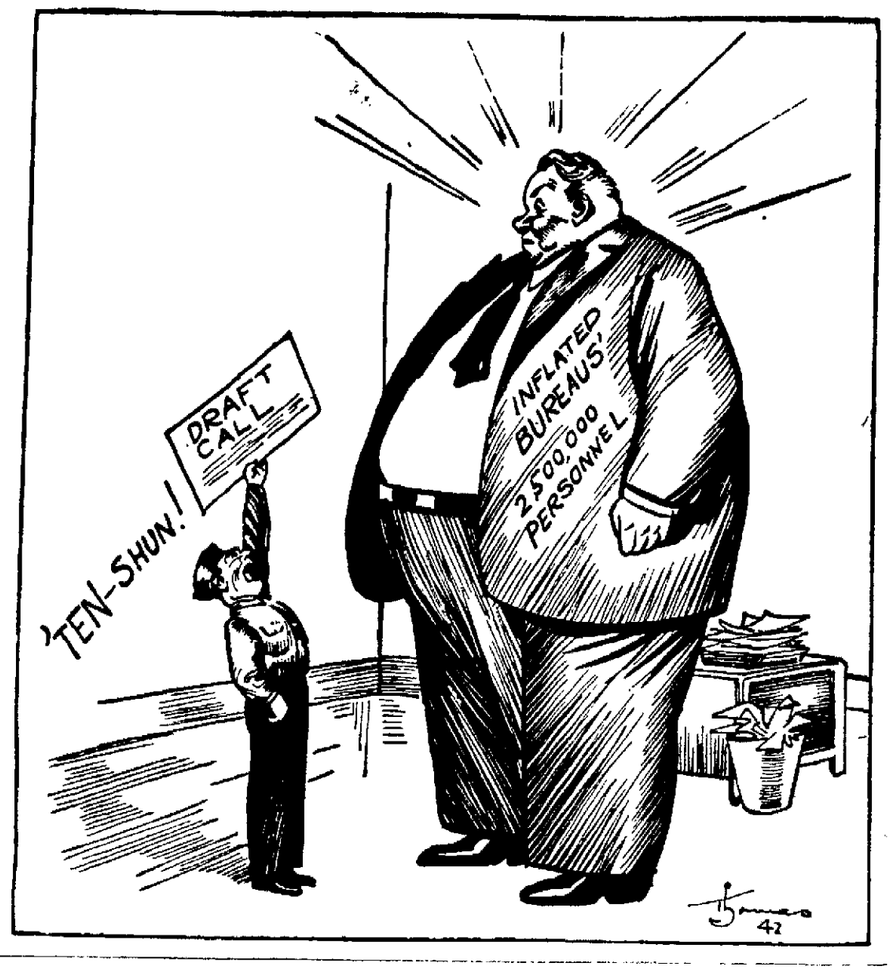
Who 'Owns' Telephone Number?

CAN property interest be acquired in a telephone number? Who owns the number, telephone company or subscriber? Who owns a house number? There is "26 Broadway." To thousands that spells Standard Oil. Would there be a property loss if New York should decide to revise its ancient, long outworn numbering system and change that number?

H. J. Hollander of Cleveland has filed suit asking that the Ohio Bell Telephone company be restrained from taking away his telephone number. Nine-tenths of the business of the Hollander Abstract company, he says, is done by telephone, and the customers know the old number, which this company has had for many years.

In all probability a telephone company would not change a long-established number without good cause. In this instance it will be up to the courts to determine whether the cause was sufficient—or whether the subscriber has any actual "rights" in the matter.

WASHINGTON'S SURPLUS MANPOWER



Hoover May Be Factor In 1944

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Anti-New Deal Democrats will have quite a lot to say if they care to say it, concerning the Republicans' presidentially candidatorial selection in 1944.

G. O. P. politicians are making high bids for their aid during the coming congressional years. They'll be, essentially, about as much fellow-partisans versus the Roosevelt administration as if they hadn't been elected on nominally opposing tickets.

It's the pretty general theory on Capitol Hill that, if the war's still raging, President Roosevelt will be Democratically renominated in '44. If he is, Democracy's anti-New Dealers certainly will be furious. Three terms drove 'em nearly cuckoo. Four ought to finish 'em completely. And even if, war or no war, he isn't named for a fourth time, it's a foregone conclusion that the convention will accept his pick to succeed him, and the chap will be an unqualified New Dealer.

In fact, on a guess that the war's over, New Dealerishness will have an especially favorable opportunity, supposing it's continued in office, to establish itself eternally, beginning with the reconstruction period.

It goes without saying that neither the Republicans nor the anti-New Deal Democrats will like this.

Prejudice Figures.

Between the two of 'em who really do any legitimate thinking, there exist certain genuine differences of opinion. Mostly, though, it's a mere matter of prejudice. The average voter votes as his ancestors voted before him, but the upper grade of politicians, who nominate candidates, unquestionably do have some notion of the sides they're taking.

Now, assume (a safe gamble) that the 1944 Democratic ticket is entirely too New Dealerish for the Democratic "antis"—who are almost more vicious about it than the Republicans. Yet they won't be able to do anything about it. They'll be a good-sized party chunk, but not a majority. To dictate, they'll have to combine with some Republicans.

And the Republicans?

They seem to stand a chance of being a congressional majority, beginning in 1945, but it isn't to be a big one. It'll need support from friendly Democrats.

Well, the two groups will have been plugging alongside one another during 1934 and 1944. They'll have kinda allied themselves.

The anti-New Deal Democrats won't be in an internal party majority.

But they may be able to effect some sort of affiliation, at least temporarily, with the Republicans.

It might be a permanent redivision of the parties.

A substantial personality toward a consolidation of this nub is Herbert C. Hoover.

Hoover went out of presidential office considerably discredited, due to economic bad conditions that he wound up with. But, on current investigation, it develops that he left things especially in good shape.

He's established a grand organization in Latin America.

Woowrod Wilson gummed up relations there.

Lehman Steps In.

It improved later, but Herbert started it.

The dope was recently that Hoover was to have assigned to him, the job of economically reorganizing the post-war world economically, and he, unquestionably, was figured on as the ablest expert to manage it. Herbert H. Lehman, instead, was designated as the performance's expert. Yet he's had to consult Herbert Hoover as his authority.

Presidentially Hoover was a flivver. He busted in at a time when economics were all against him.

But he'd been grand, as an administrator.

Now he wants to do some legitimate administrating.

He'll be watchable at the next conventions.

Get In Swing Shift

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I'VE BEEN WATCHING them arrive and go on the Swing Shift, that seemingly endless file of young and old who labor in this strange, new segment of our day which the old working world never knew.

Day shift and graveyard shift, it used to be then. Twelve hours each. And we set our time accordingly. Just as we set our lives for Youth and Old Age, with a weary gap in between. A gap when we lost our dreams, our pride and determination, and drifted with the sluggish, indifferent hours. "Middle Age," what a dreary business it was, back when the century began.

But we're smarter in 1942. We're not throwing away any part of our time. No one is Middle Aged today, unless they're asking for it. We're all in the Swing Shift, punching the time clock, swinging the levers, keeping pace with the new ideas.

And that doesn't imply that we go to work at four and quit at midnight. It doesn't necessarily mean that you're welding a Liberty Ship just about the time you used to dim the lights and put out the cat. It means that the whole world is changing its attitude toward human life—and, if you're wise, you are changing yours too.

Time was when you graduated to the rocking chair or the back stoop when you turned forty or fifty. We'd "had our day." We'd worked and played, and settled down and raised a family. Now we were going to "take it easy" . . . "let the young folks do it."

Sounded cheerful and resigned, but there wasn't much real cheer beneath it. We didn't honestly want to take things easy. We still felt limber. We still wanted to do things. But there didn't seem to be any place for such young ideas then. So we bowed to our fate. Started knitting baby jackets for Miranda's girl, who was expecting. Began whittling and spitting 'n' giving our views on politics down at the "general store," along with the other old codgers.

Thirty, forty years ago, you began drifting out of the main current when your Day Shift was done. But not now! Those faces coming from the Swing Shift today, they aren't wasting much time whittling or spitting or knitting baby jackets. They are as much alive as they were at twenty. They're laughing, kidding, boasting over the latest building record they've made. They've put the years behind them, along with the rocking chairs and back stoops.

They've put their old notions and prejudices behind them too. There never was a prejudice that you could cherish for forty years without it going rancid on you. They've discovered this, these Swing Shift oldsters. It's meant a mighty wrench for many of them. They've had to see old ideals and standards chucked on the junk pile . . . ideals and standards on which they based their personal pride. And it hurt.

But they've set their jaws and rolled up their sleeves and pitched in. They're on the Swing Shift, now—and this is no time to be peevish or crochety or set in your ways. Or you'll land in the junk pile, too.

Is this a personal tip, partner? It is. For I'm facing the same decision you must face. Time was when I had the same set notions, the same pet ideas. Folks had to act and think in a certain way or they were headed straight for the dogs. As for me, myself, I'd led a mighty hard life and I was counting on plenty of padding and coddling when my hair turned gray.

Well, my hair's turning gray. But if you think I'm enjoying any of that coddling, you're crazy. No rocking chairs for me! It takes all my time just keeping up with the healthy new thought and rage and wonder of this resurrected world.

I'm in the Swing Shift now! I've no chance to grow old! My heels are marching to the Swing Time beat. My mind is clicking to the Swing Time hope. And you'd better come clicking with me or you'll wish you had!

Timely Editorial

No Point In Guessing.

Wisely enough President Roosevelt refuses to join in predictions about when the war in Europe will end. No one knows. There is no point in guessing. Whenever anyone sets a date by wishful thinking its only possible effect is some sort of slowdown. Everything possible should be done to intensify the drive, not to retard the slightest contribution.

Predictions only start rumors. They can never help anything. Fighting and working to win the war will be best if it is geared to the idea that the struggle will be long and hard.—Toledo Blade.

Summary of Week's Happenings

McNutt to Distribute Manpower, Wickard Tackles Food Problems

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

LAST January 6 the army and navy's commander-in-chief, Franklin D. Roosevelt, wrote out an order for supplies.

In 1942, he told the nation's factory and shipyard men, they could send around 60,000 airplanes, 45,000 tanks, 20,000 anti-aircraft guns, 8,000,000 tons of shipping. That would do for a starter; in 1943 they could expect the order to be increased to 125,000 planes, 75,000 tanks, 35,000 anti-aircraft guns and 10,000,000 tons of shipping.

Those factory men who had hardly recovered from the shock of seeing the last automobile, washing machine, radio, refrigerator or toaster roll off the assembly line, gulped and went to work. They put presses, jigs and dies into storage, they retooled, they tackled strange designs.

The Accounting.

How well they did their job was disclosed during the week in an OWI report on completed and anticipated production. They missed in planes (49,000), on tanks (32,000) and on anti-aircraft guns (17,000), but went over the top on shipping (8,200,000).

In congress there was no dismay. Senator Truman, whose committee has made an exhaustive study of production bottlenecks, said a shortage of gadgets was partially responsible. Next year's production goals, he predicted, will be reached.

Less enthusiastic was WPB's Chairman Donald Nelson, winner a week before in a contest with the army and navy over the right to establish production schedules for war equipment parts.

Tops the Axis.

October's production went only 3 per cent beyond September's, said Nelson, with aircraft down 5 per cent and merchant vessels, 10 per cent. Even though the present rate is in excess of the combined production of the Axis powers, Nelson said "We have not yet reached the point where we can afford so marked a decline in that rate of increase."

Nelson, too, found an explanation for the failure to reach the goals. Shortages of materials hampered ordnance production, and shortages of men — because of the draft — worked against aircraft output.

Boss McNutt.

For weeks, Washington had been expecting the president to "do something" about manpower. Farmers looked to next year's production goals with apprehension, war factories were almost ready to hire anyone who could distinguish between a riveting hammer and a task hammer. Selective service mopped up the 1A's, prepared to take men with dependents.

So there was more than coincidence in the production-lag report and the appointment of Paul V. McNutt as chairman of the manpower commission.

Within hours after he received unprecedented authority over the dissemination of the nation's brains, skill and brawn, McNutt tackled the basic problem—the military needs for manpower. He spoke of "plans" for an armed force of 9,700,000 by the end of next year, declined to say whether this figure was subject to immediate revision.

He lumped the total U. S. population into a national pool "from which the needs of the armed forces, industry, agriculture and essential civilian activities will be supplied."

A Lock on the Pantry.

A big, smiling Hoosier farmer sat down with some fellow agricultural experts in Memphis, Tenn., to talk about the food problem.

"Well," said the Hoosier, "we can try for the best production possible—and even then, things are going to be pretty hard in 1943." He figured, though, that prices would make farming a profitable enterprise.

This is no cracker-barrel opinion, because the Hoosier farmer, Claude Raymond Wickard, U. S. secretary of agriculture, had just been given complete charge of the nation's food production, distribution and marketing.

Not in any other period of U. S. history has the food question assumed such tremendous proportions, and not in any other period has a civilian held such sweeping authority. The folks at home, the soldier, the lend-lease recipient and the residents of lands abroad that may be occupied by United Nations, all will look to Wickard for their food supplies.

Out of WPB's hands and into Wickard's passed the rationing system—although it will be administered by OPA. Price controls will continue under the direction of Leon Henderson.

At Home

Prelude to '44.

Republicans got their biggest lift in 10 years when, a month ago, they hammered the Democrats' house majority down to little more than a baker's dozen, grabbed 10 new seats in the senate, nailed down governorships all over the country. On the political front, they still held the spotlight during the week.

Shrewd Tom Dewey, preparing to take over the New York governorship that may make him a front-runner for the G. O. P. presidential nomination in 1944, decided to dispense with the fuss-and-feathers that have marked inauguration ceremonies—at a cost reported by Dewey to be $25,000. There will be no Dewey reception Jan. 1, no lunch for 800 guests, not even a special platform in the assembly chamber where he will take the oath.

Later in the day, Dewey will be glad to meet anyone who wants to call—but not if they've misused gasoline and tires to get there.

In Ohio, a '44 boom was started for Governor John W. Bricker by Senator Robert Taft, himself a favorite-son candidate at the 1940 convention.

In St. Louis, the party's national committee displayed positive leanings toward the "Willkie faction" by rejecting the candidacy of Werner W. Schroeder, Chicago lawyer, and electing as chairman the veteran Iowa leader, Harrison E. Spangler—not sponsored by the Willkiemen, but presented as a compromise candidate after a two-ballot deadlock.

War Money.

The digestive apparatus of juke boxes and gum machines, it appears, was not built to feed on steel nickles. "Severe internal damage" might result, the house coinage committee learned, if such a mechanical wonder jammed on a steel nickel and a disgruntled patron battered too hard trying to get his "nickel" back.

To save more than 5,600 tons of copper and 300 tons of nickel annually for war industry use, the treasury is contemplating making its nickels out of common steel with a wash coating of zinc to prevent rust.

The senate already has authorized the treasury to make wooden nickels, if it so desires, or use any other substitute it fancies. Principal opponents of the measure are the vending machine industry and users of coin boxes, for their machines are build to give—music, candy, correct weight and sometimes astrological interpretations—only on existing coins.

Dress Dilemma.

New York style designers are worried. To conserve fabrics they have steadily eliminated frills and excess material from their dresses. Some designers fear the irreducible minimum, especially in bathing suits, is rapidly being approached.

"We have eliminated pockets, pleats, tucks and hems and cut dresses as short as they ought to be," said Sophie of Saks-Fifth avenue, "but if the Dress Institute's Conservation Committee can think of new tricks, I'll be glad to use them."

"Bathing suits are pretty scant already," said Mrs. Caroline Schnurer who designs what little there is of current bathing suits. "I don't see how we can skimp on them much more without causing a lot of trouble."

Abroad

Block at Bizerte.

American troops slugged their way into Casablanca, Oran, Algiers. They made a tough job look so easy the sideline rooters at home went slaphappy.

Operating with British forces, the Americans pushed on toward Tunis, hoping to toss a net of steel and fire over the desperate Axis troops entrenched on the tip of Tunisia, in the harbor of Bizerte.

The folks at home were cheering so loudly they couldn't hear the cautioning words of military experts on the spot—that the defeat of the Axis in Tunisia would be a job of major proportions.

But the week's developments in Africa indicated that the experts were right, and brought home a more sober consideration of the task ahead.

By midweek the Axis hadn't been able to break out of the net, but the Allies hadn't been able to pull it any tighter. The battle centered around Tebourba, where the second big tank clash within a week was under way.

In the background was the struggle so vast that in Washington, Lt. Gen. Henry H. Arnold saw it as the possible key to air supremacy over all Europe.

Toulon Lowdown.

When the Vichy radio screamed the story of the destruction of the French fleet in the harbor of Toulon, Washington and London accepted the story—but with a degree of restraint. Many observers believed the story was too pat—the Nazi-controlled radio telling elaborate details of an event that amounted to a Nazi tactical defeat.

This week brought some confirmation, at least, of the story, but it wasn't as bad as the Vichy radio said. In Washington Navy Secretary Frank Knox said British aerial reconnaissance had shown 51 of the 75 vessels sunk, damaged or unaccounted for. However, 20 were left intact, including two light cruisers and a demilitarized battleship. Furthermore, said the secretary, the Nazis may find it possible to repair and put back into service some of the ships resting on the harbor bottom.

Dakar Comes In.

From the hectic North African political front came news that was more assuring. Dakar, for long days the question mark of the North African campaign, moved into the Allied camp through the triple play of Governor Pierre Boisson to Admiral Darlan to Gen. Dwight Eisenhower.

Boisson, who previously had announced his loyalty to Darlan, took the final step and offered Dakar's port facilities and airfields to the Allies. It was another triumph for Eisenhower—plagued with the problem of dealing with Darlan and placating the Fighting French—for the facilities will enable the Allies to fight the South Atlantic submarine menace, give them a shorter water supply route from Brazil.

Busy King.

King Victor Emanuel is a busy man these days. He is, according to Italian reports, the official dispenser of solace and comfort to residents of bombed cities.

The RAF has kept him jumping from Genoa to Turin to Milan. This week the American Air Force summoned him to Naples, great naval and railroad clearing center for Axis supply shipments to Africa.

The four-motored Liberators came at sunset and reported hits on a battleship, two cruisers and much merchant shipping tied up in the shadow of Vesuvius. King Victor was reported at Naples soon after Rome announced 159 dead and 358 wounded.

While the RAF and AAF kept the Italians jumping, their comrades in planes based on England peppered the continent, forcing the Luftwaffe to keep in France, Germany and the Low Countries planes badly needed in Africa. Locomotive works at Lille, a giant airdrome at Abbeville, a radio factory at Eindhoven, Holland, were hit.

Axis Babies.

The Axis thrives on thriving birthrates. Mussolini long ago gave bonuses to Italy's more fertile parents. Hitler did the same and through his youth organizations has made motherhood in or out of wedlock a sacred Nazi duty.

Bulgaria, now under the Nazi wing, moved during the week to halt its declining birthrate. Bachelors, widowers and childless couples are to be taxed under a new state program for the support of large families. A sliding scale of medals was adopted ranging from bronze for mothers of three children to gold for mothers of seven.

Bulgarian bachelors 27 or older employed in state, communal or public positions, were given 17 months in which to become husbands and subsequently, it was hoped, fathers.

Signs of Times

British betting brokers, encouraged by the improvement in the Allies' position, are wagering even money the war will end by June, 1943. But Lloyds of London is accepting no bets, quoting no odds.

Sun Valley, glamorous Idaho winter resort, is closing for the duration because of rationing, manpower and transportation difficulties. One of its backers—William M. Jeffers, rubber administrator.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

Olina's voice ran down as if speech were becoming a burden.

"How did you ever manage it?" I asked with genuine wonderment.

"I never could have done it if it had not been for my own maid, Celeste," she said. "She was devoted to me, and had more liberty of movement than I had. My father's valet was very much in love with her and was a relative of my aunt's old servants.

"He got in touch with the old people and they rented The Larches, perhaps because the old man had some wild idea that sometime I might want to take a motor boat from a Long Island harbor to a ship off shore.

"I never did know just how Celeste and Marco, my father's valet, engineered my final departure. But Celeste told me to leave a letter for my mother telling her I had met some Americans, whose very names, if I revealed them, would be a guarantee of their high position and character; that I should be perfectly safe, and would stay with them until I decided to go home again.

"Celeste also urged me to corroborate in my letter the apparently frantic story she was to tell my mother.

"I told Mama in my letter that while I was in a shop with two entrances, I sent Celeste to the opposite side of the store, then as soon as she was out of sight, strolled to another entrance and made my escape, leaving Celeste frantically hunting for me.

"Marco had covered our tracks well. A secret intensive search was made for me, but that was given up when the royal party had to return to Transvania. The newspapers told of my swathed figure being carried up the gang plank, and when I finally went back to Transvania, Celeste gleefully told me of the thrill it had given her to impersonate me as she was carried aboard.

"So that was the way I got to The Larches," she went on. "Then I met all you dear people of the farmhouse family, and I loved it all, but after the novelty wore off I began to feel something like nostalgia for my home, my family, and—yes, I must admit it—for Georges.

"You see Noel, the only eligible young man around and whom I admired immensely, was plainly wrapped up in Mary. And I am afraid," with a rueful laugh, "that it piqued me a bit, for a young royal princess in court circles is always surrounded by adulation.

"But later Georges came over here and found me, and I knew at last that, as the song says, he was 'mah man.'"

"But, Olina," I asked, "didn't you change your mind about that for awhile?" For I remembered her convincing show of being in love with Noel. She not only had annexed him boldly, but for months after her return, ignoring his marriage in the meantime to Mary, she had pursued him.

Olina's face now flushed to a deep crimson, and I saw her hands twist together nervously.

"I told you it wasn't a pretty story in spots," she said. "What I did after Georges' arrival is one of those spots."

"You don't have to tell me, dear," I told her tenderly. "I think I can imagine what happened."

DINA CASHMAN + + +

By Kathleen Norris

(Copyright, 1942.)

CHAPTER VIII

She had had that to remember as she turned back in December darkness to the ashes and rain pools, the shanties, noises, and smells of the Flats, to the garish light of the kitchen and supper plates plastered with the grease of lamb stew.

That had been before Christmas, before she had dreamed—before she had feared what she dreamed and feared now. She never should have let him go; it might have shocked him, it might have sobered or even disgusted him, but Vere was too affectionate, too much the loving blundering puppy she had so often called him, to desert her now.

But how and where could she find him, and if she did find him what could he say to his father and his mother; what would his career be, going east to law school with a wife clinging to him and a baby on the way? Dina pondered it until she was heartsick with the hopelessness of it, and she could see no way out.

Dina, Dooley and Lou and the two smaller children were out in the forlorn patch of earth they called the garden, ostensibly doing what they could to make it presentable after the deluging rains of mid-winter.

But only Dooley really was helping. Dooley was a squarely built girl of twelve who liked working with her big sister and was like Dina in that she was already assuming such responsibility as she could for the welfare of the family. Myrna, at fourteen, always had engagements on Sundays now; her pretty young face powdered, her pretty soft hair curled, her lips of the color and wetness of blood, she was off with her adored Nancy as soon as the breakfast dishes were done.

Lou, ten, was a pale, undernourished-looking little creature who was hanging today like some small wood animal on the gate, letting the sunshine penetrate her very bones. Elmer and Donny, the babies of the family, were busy with an old wagon, ropes, bottles, and planks and paid no more attention to Dina's efforts than if she had been one of the gulls that were walking and complaining on the roofs of the old red boxcars that had been stalled on a siding for all the years that any inhabitant had known Railway Flats.

Dina had on an old cotton dress; she had tied a clean length of burlap firmly about her hips; her head was enveloped in a gypsy handkerchief; her slender legs were bare from where the dress stopped at her knees to where they disappeared into a pair of old tennis shoes. She was equipped for a mean job, and something in her rose to it and liked it.

"If the worst thing in the world were only mean jobs!" she said to herself more than once. "If I were what everyone thinks I am, just Dina Cashman, cleaning up the place and talking to the kids: if I could go back to last October and get engaged to Tom and have a little wedding—we could have it at the O'Connor place—Miss Tipman would let us have the double parlors."

She was so sick, and tired of fear and shame! Tired of thinking, thinking, thinking, with no end to the thinking! Days were going by and were weeks; time was bringing her inevitably to the moment when she must act, when something must be done.

And she seemed helpless, like a frantic little mouse in a trap, running around and around desperately, sniffing at every outlet, and in the end only a few hours nearer destruction.

"Pretty hopeless, isn't it?" Mrs. van Hooten working away in her garden with three milk-blond babies for companions, called cheerfully.

"Hopeless!" Dina answered back, swallowing, managing a smile.

She had a rake; against the broken strip of side porch a broom worn down to the hard nubble of the strings was leaning.

Dina had raked a snarl of cans, ropes, webbed papers, and straw into a heap and was pushing it on a square of old sacking spread on the ground. The dumps were but a hundred feet away, and fires were smoldering there even on this Sunday morning.

"We don't have much trouble getting rid of it, that's a good thing!" the little Dutch neighbor called.

"I was thinking that!" Dina set milk bottles, clotted with mud, in a row on the fence. Some ten feet of good strong wooden paling stood on one side of the Cashman lot. Just why it was there nobody ever seemed to know.

On either end of the unfenced lumpy ground was free again. But it did serve the purpose of a garage; the Cashman car, when not in use, was nosed into it on one side and the Brennan car on the other.

Dina panted in the heat, wiped her forhead with her forearm. She swept the soaked and rotting accumulations of rubbish from the steps, stopped to pull up a particularly tough bunch of grass, found it immovable, and straightened her aching back up to smile into the eyes of Tom O'Connor, unexpectedly beside her.

"Tom!" Dina exclaimed, "Dunk Beatty said you might be coming down. I was going to clean up and be all ready for you!"

"I like you the way you are," Tom said. They sat down on the steps together.

He had a new job, he told her. He had been offered better prospects with the Hamilton Pipe and Steel company in south San Francisco. How about it, now? Had Dina been thinking it over? How'd she like to go house hunting with him this afternoon in south San Francisco?

The dear usual progress; her heart ached at the thought of it! She needed him so now; she liked him so much and trusted him so completely!

Dina was swept by a sudden feeling of utter weakness. If she could only take what Tom offered; if she could throw herself and her burdens once and for all upon him, how she would repay him! What a home his should be, what a wife, what comfort and sweetness and spoiling she would pour over him!

Would she have married Tom if the fearful predicament in which she found herself had passed her by? She did not know. She only knew that after three weeks of cold and dark, worrying and lineliness, he was the biggest, the safest thing that had come her way or could ever come her way.

There was infinite rest in his mere nearness. Perhaps if he knew how desperately she needed him, perhaps if he knew how eternally grateful she would be to escape from the eyes and the tongues all about her. Tom might be big enough to help her, to offer her all the more eagerly to shelter and protection she must have.

"I'd like to be married this afternoon," she said suddenly and thickly. She half turned as she spoke, her face sober, and saw Tom's astonished eyes.

"What did you say?" he stammered.

"Oh, because I'm so tired—I'm so sick of everything." Her throat thickened; she looked away.

"Ah, sure you are!" Tom's husky voice said comfortingly. I'd take care of you to the last day of my life."

"I need taking care of," she said somberly, swallowing.

"That's all I want to do, dear," said Tom, his voice shaking.

"Pop's asleep," the girl told him, jerking her head backward toward the house. "I don't want him to hear us," she said.

"The Authority on Authorities"

COUNTING WINS TRICKS

KNOWING that the card led is the smallest of the suit held by the opener can be the key to your entire play. If it is a suit contract, you may be almost sure that it is either a singleton or his fourth-best from a four-card suit. That information may enable you to know that a certain otherwise risky play may be safe to try, or that a certain other apparently safe play would be risky. Counting the suit-lengths of your opponents will win many tricks for you, if you make due use of it.

	♠ K 8 7 5 ♥ A 10 9 6 5 ♦ 2 ♣ 9 8 5
♠ 10 3 ♥ Q 7 2 ♦ J 7 6 3 ♣ A Q J 2	N W E S	♠ A 2 ♥ J 4 ♦ 9 8 5 4 ♣ 10 7 6 4 3
	♠ Q J 9 6 4 ♥ K 8 3 ♦ A K Q 10 ♣ K

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass

To most of the South players in a social duplicate game, the size of the card used by West for the opening lead was of no consequence, and so they made exactly 4-Spades on this deal, losing one trick each in spades, hearts and clubs. A few of them made an extra trick against the same lead.

It was the diamond 3. Most of the declarers, after winning that with the 10, led trumps at once. East won with the A and switched to the club 4, the A winning the K and the J being returned for a ruff. Later the defenders at those tables took a heart trick.

Only two of the declarers noticed the size of the card. With the 2 in dummy, the 3 was palpably West's smallest. That it could be a singleton was unlikely, as then East would have held six, making some kind of bid highly probable. If it was the bottom of a four-card suit, then East also had four. With this reckoning, those declarers cashed the rest of their diamonds and discarded all of dummy's clubs before leading trumps. As a consequence, they lost no trick in clubs, but only one each in the majors, so made an extra trick for a tied top.

Your Week-end Lesson.

Do you understand the rare play called by some the "suicide squeeze" and by others the "cannibal squeeze," whereby one partner ruins the other? Can you set up an example of it to illustrate the principles involved?

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

You can start sending those cheerful greetings for the sick to Mansfield Tyger gridiron Coach Paul Snyder again.

Paul is down with the flu again, the same thing that kept him from coaching his Tygers through the last two weeks of the football season.

Returning to school, and coaching the high school sophomore cage team for a little over two weeks, Snyder was forced to check in again Wednesday for sick bay.

Now it's Coach Harry Mehock of the sophomore squad.

Add effects of the war on sports transportation: two fine banquets missed by the old Podger.

Had to turn down an invitation to the Canton McKinley celebration this week, and now comes an invitation to the Massillon dinner Dec. 17, which probably also will be declined with regret.

It's a great show the Massillons put on, and I'd like to see it this year, when they can't kid the McKinleys much.

It's always nice to attend these dinners,
When you know the guys who dine are winners.

The American Bowling Congress says reports have not yet been completed in the USO event which opened the national Victory Legion bowling campaign, but at present Mansfield ranks 55th in the nation in the amount turned in by the keglers to the fund, with $133.

St. Louis was first with $4,453, then came Buffalo and Rochester, before Cleveland opened the Ohio scoring with $1,450. Cincinnati was 12th in the nation with $631, Canton 22nd with $385, Fremont 34th with $233, Middletown 46th with $159, Norwood 50th with $146, Mt. Vernon 66th $110, and Painesville 67th with $108.

The colleges are beginning to report on the success of Mansfield boys in the past season.

From Athens, O., comes the word that former Tyger Alex Radovich has his varsity letter at Ohio U. in his sophomore year.

And from Durham, N. C., Duke has announced the news that Bob Wirbigler and Paul Dietzel earned their freshman numerals.

Strange, neither of these items surprises the folks back home.

Add rationing: seats at Marion Harding's home cage games. Only 300 are available, and visiting teams can have 50 of them, if they want 'em. Which they probably don't, with gas rationing and all.

Princes, Muskies Take League Tilts

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Heidelberg and Muskingum were victorious in Ohio conference basketball games last night.

The Student Princes, playing their opening league contest of the season, downed Ashland college, 39 to 48, at Tiffin. Tom Cole, Heidelberg sophomore was high scorer with 17 points.

At New Concord, the Muskies, Fred Center Dave McDowell's 14 points, smothered Findlay college, 54 to 30.

Against out-of-state opposition, four other Ohio college cage teams broke even—winning two and losing the same number.

The victories for the Buckeye state were chalked up by Ohio Wesleyan, which beat Wabash college of Indiana, 49 to 38, at Delaware, and Marietta college, which won, 56 to 48, from Fairmount State Teachers of West Virginia.

Allegheny college of Meadville, Pa., edged Oberlin college, 39 to 35, at Oberlin, in the season opener for both schools.

At Detroit, Lawrence Tech trounced Kent State of Kent, O., 71 to 56.

OPERATION SEPARATES TWIN WRESTLERS

EAST LANSING, Mich.—(AP)—The greatest wrestling combination in Michigan State college history has been disrupted. Burl (Bo) Jennings, N. C. A. A. 128-pound wrestling champion for two years, is recuperating from an operation and has small chance of defending his title this year. His twin brother, Merle, who also won national championships at 121 pounds, is still in the ring. The twins were honored this year by being elected as student members of the athletic council of the college. They hail from Tulsa, Okla.

Wildcats Trounce Tygers

Newark Spoils First Home Tilt 44 to 21.

USING their height advantage to control the ball through the big share of the ball game, Newark high school's tall Wildcats spoiled Mansfield's home opener of the basketball season last night by romping over the Tygers 44-21.

It was the second straight victory for the 'Cats, and the second straight defeat for the Tygers.

Newark used its size on defense as well as offense, putting up a closely knit zone defense that had the Tygers baffled as they tried to pass through to the bucket. The Tygers had a few open shots near the hoop, and had to hurry the ones they did take, but there were times in the ball game when they made it interesting.

The Wildcats got away to a 5-0 lead as Sessor sank the first of five long shots which he scored during the evening, and Campbell, Jackson and Schaus added free points. Doug Myers got the Tygers' first point on a free toss, and after Schaus had connected on a free shot, the Tygers brought the score to 5-6 on a follow shot by Robertson and a one-hander from the side by Lameraux.

But Jackson tallied under the hoop and Schaus scored in the lane and it was 10-5 at the quarter.

The second quarter was all Newark as the 'Cats boosted the score to 22-8 at the half. Two free shots by Baker and one by Lameraux constituted the Mansfield scoring in this period.

Then the Tygers came charging back in the third quarter, closing the gap at 13-23, and then 16-25 on a free toss by Baker, a short shot from the side by Lameraux, a long shot from the side by Robertson, a free point by Les Myers, and a long side shot by Baker. But Newark got back in the game and led 29-18 as the period ended.

And then it was all Newark again in the last period as the Tygers were limited to three points, a free toss by Baker and an under-bucket shot by Lameraux.

Tonight the Tygers go to Elyria, a squad of 12 players making the trip in private cars.

Nova Stopped By Mauriello

Sent to Hospital With Injuries From Bout.

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK — (AP) — A heavy-contender, Lou Nova was in a hospital with assorted injuries today, his dreams of hitting the jackpot just about dead.

And, the way things began to shape up after the Golden Boy from California was put to sleep by young Tami Mauriello for the entertainment of 15,369 customers in Madison Square Garden last night, the fancy fuss over the so-called "duration" heavyweight championship was just about the same, thank you.

Nova had quite a collection of injuries from his six-round stay with the Bronx "Gang Buster." Dr. Vincent Nardiello had X-ray plates showing a broken ninth rib on Lou's left side, a dislocated tenth rib, a torn cartilage and a possible kidney injury. Nova outweighed his rival 20 pounds.

But aside from Nova's ailments, most of which he acquired from a right hand shot in the breadbasket in the fourth round, the situation over the much-hilled duration heavyweight champ is virtually unchanged.

For, less than ten minutes after the kid from the Bronx had treated the California 'Adonis" to his going over, Tami's manager, Private Lefty Rimini, and Promoter Mike Jacobs had about decided to toss out previous plans to match Mauriello and Jimmy Bivins, the Cleveland clouter, in January.

NO EMBARRASSMENT FOR THIS GRIDDER

AUBURN, Ala. — (AP) — Monk Gafford, Auburn halfback who sparked the Tigers to a victory over unbeaten Georgia is a very practical man.

After the game an enthusiastic fan approached Monk in the dressing room where the Tiger ace was putting on his pants.

"What would you do," the fan queried, "if you made All-American?"

Gafford thought a moment and replied.

"I'd finish putting on my pants."

PICKS BOWL SQUAD

NEWTON, Mass. —(INS)— Head Coach Denny Myers, whose Boston college Eagles have been preparing for three weeks for a New Years day tussle with Alabama in Miami's Orange Bowl, today announced the names of 35 players slated to make the southern trip.

COAST GAME HAS HOLLYWOOD SCRIPT

LOS ANGELES—(INS)—Hollywood should have written the script for this afternoon's football game between the University of Southern California and the University of California at Los Angeles, in which the winner will be the Pacific coast champion and the underdog in the Rose Bowl game against Georgia and Sinkwich.

With all its football movies, Hollywood never set a better scene. It's the last conference game of the season. Both teams have come back from heartbreaking defeats to wind up as the only contenders for the coast crown. Because they are both Los Angeles schools, their rivalry is intense no matter what's at stake.

Elyria Beaten In Cage Tilt

Willard Edged by One Point by Crestline.

When Mansfield high school's Tygers invade Elyria tonight, both teams will be attempting a comeback from disastrous basketball ventures of Friday night. Mansfield matching its 21-44 defeat by Newark against Elyria's 29 45 loss at Cleveland Heights.

Willard, Mansfield home opponent of next Friday night, was edged by Crestline 26-25.

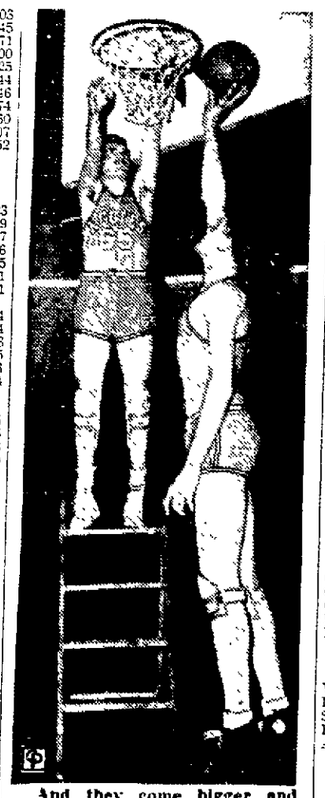
Among other future opponents of the Tygers, Ashland rolled over Norwalk 53-36, Cleveland Collinwood was defeated by Akron North 22-31, Canton McKinley swamped Cleveland John Marshal 48-21, Youngstown Chaney took Newton Falls 38-23, and in a game between two Tyger foes, New Philadelphia defeated Zanesville 36-26.

Columbus South, winner over Mansfield last week, defeated Portsmouth 40-38.

In other Mansfield area games, Bucyrus was taken by Delaware 34-45, and Perrysville lost its first decision in three starts at Savannah 35-41 in a rough tilt. Perrysville plays the Mansfield Reserves in a preliminary to the Willard game next week.

How High Is Up?



And they come bigger and bigger. Latest skyscraper to hit the basketball court is Bob Kurland, 17-year-old Oklahoma A. & M. center who stands an even 7 feet high. How easily he can pot the baskets is shown in this picture. Teammate Burford Maddox, on ladder, is a mere 5 feet 11 inches tall. The Aggies played in New York against C. C. N. Y.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Gerry Nugent, who apparently prefers to sell the Phils piecemeal instead of in one chunck, had a date with Branch Rickey last night . . . The subject of their conversation wasn't disclosed, of course, but Rickey has become a buyer instead of a seller since he left St. Louis and we hear that when somebody offered Nugent $300,000 for the Phils' franchise his reply was that he could get that much for four of his players.

PROGRAM NOTES.

Clark Shaughnessy, who has been scouting the Redskins for the Bears, is pessimistic about Chicago's chances in the pro football playoff tomorrow. In fact, he doesn't see how the Bears can win by more than two touchdowns . . . Incidentally, Sammy Baugh says the Bears' most dangerous back is little Ray McLean, who can do everything George McAfee did and some things better than George . . . As for the rest, "They hit you awful hard, but they always pick you up," says Baugh.

SERVICE DEPT.

The first Keesler Field open golf championship is slated for a week from tomorrow at Edgewater Park, Miss. It will be directed by Sgt. Joseph Mazziotti, former New York pro . . . Vic Fusia, former Manhattan college gridder who was the voice of the Jacksonville naval air station team this fall, had a bad foot when the Fliers played Duke. During the second half, when the navy men were leading 13-0, Coach Hobbs Adams asked Vic if he'd like to go in . . . What's the use," asked Vic, "we're ahead, aren't we?"

PRESENTS PROGRAM OF PHYSICAL FITNESS

CHICAGO—(INS)—Dan Ferris, national secretary of the amateur athletic union, today was to present to the organization's 51th annual convention details of a physical fitness play designed to improve the health of men and boys from 15 to 50.

The plan envisions participation of students, war-workers, office workers and others in eight competitive events.

Varying standards of accomplishment have been set for the different age groups and, in addition, athletic rivalry would be fostered by competition in the events between firms, clubs, community organizations and other groups.

THEATERS

Spectacular Musical.

Set against the eye-filling background of Lake Louise, the musical extravaganza, "Springtime in the Rockies," opening today at the Ohio has a cast that is practically all-star. Betty Grable, John Payne, Carmen Miranda and Harry James and his Music Makers hold top billing and the supporting players include Cesar Romero, Edward Everett Horton and Jackie Gleason. Carmen Miranda's songs, particularly her Latinizing of "Chattanooga Choo Choo," are among the chief entertainment features along with several pretentious dancing spectacles.

Comedy With Music.

Victor Mature is faced with marrying a girl he has never met in order to collect an inheritance in his current starring picture, "Seven Days' Leave," comedy with music, showing at the Madison. As a musician-enlistee he is just about to leave for overseas when he learns of a stipulation in the will that sends him searching for a matrimonial partner. Lucille Ball plays opposite Mature and the cast includes Freddy Martin and Les Brown and their bands also Mapy Cortez, Latin-American star and Ginny Simms. "Boston Blackie Goes Hollywood," is the co-feature.

Musical Show.

An old New England farmhouse turned into an inn and open only on holidays furnishes the locale for the Fred Astaire-Bing Crosby starring feature, "Holiday Inn," opening Sunday at the Ritz. Crosby plays a song writer who conceives the idea of opening the inn while Astaire and Virginia Dale play his partners in a song and dance act. Irving Berlin's tunes are featured in the picture including "White Christmas," "Easter Parade," and a number of others. Marjorie Reynolds and Walter Abel are also cast. "The World at War," a government motion picture, shares the bill.

Spy Drama.

"Invisible Agent," a spy drama, opening Sunday at the Park, presents Jon Hall in the role of a United Nations secret operative who is able to penetrate enemy headquarters because of his ability to become invisible. Ilona Massey, Peter Lorre and Sir Cedris Hardwicke are in the film with Lorre in the role of a ruthless Japanese diplomat. John Beal in "One Thrilling Night," with Wanda McKay is the co-feature.

BITTER FIGHT FACES ALLIES

Axis Army Reinforced to Total Of 28,000 Men as Tunisia Battle Heightens.

home-based British bombers last night on Turin.

The Tunisian picture was balanced too by the British Middle East announcement today that in the related battle for Libya "developments are proceeding according to plan without interference from the enemy."

Some quarters in London suggested this meant Rommel might have been outmaneuvered at El Agheila while others, taking a more cautious view, conjectured that he might have left just a screen of token forces along the 40-mile defile there while withdrawing the bulk of his remaining forces toward Tripoli.

Growing Axis nervousness and reports that British patrols had penetrated as deep as two miles within enemy lines between the Gulf of Sirte and the El Agheila salt depression lent support to the theory that Rommel had decided against a stand there.

The Italian high command's war bulletin, without supporting details, reported today that British armored attacks had been warded off in Libya.

For their part, the Germans, frustrated in their drive upon Allied-held Medjaz El Bab, 35 miles southwest of Tunis, said today that in new thrusts stubborn Allied defenders had been wiped out at a bridgehead south of the Medjerda river, which bisects the Mateur-Tebourba line in Tunisia.

Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, meanwhile, continued to gather his forces in the muddy hills and the Allied spokesman was optimistic that an overwhelming Allied striking force would be in position to push the Germans back to the sea in due time.

"The enemy has been able to get appreciable men and materials from Sicily," he said. "Gen. Anderson (Lieut. Gen. K. A. N. Anderson, commander of the British First army) cannot commit himself to a major battle until he is certain of winning."

A Reuters dispatch from the Tunisian front estimated that 23,000 Germans and 5,000 Italians were in Tunisia. Ten or 12 German transport planes are arriving with troops every day, it was said.

The Vichy radio reported early today that German forces were maintaining their pressure against Allied positions southwest of Tebourba.

The spokesman was enthusiastic about the cooperation of Allied air forces in the Medjez El Bab engagement.

"The fighter planes arrived almost immediately when the attacks came and strafed the enemy line like hell," he said. He described the fighting as "encouraging."

Both sides are hampered by bad weather and sticky mud which was described as even worse than "the mud of the Somme" in the first World war.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, December 13

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds auguries of much activity, but unluckily this commotion may not be either profitable or enjoyable. A sudden and surprising turn of events may upset all plans, creating all sorts of obstacles, delays and disappointments. In this the wise course will not be to lose control of resources or energies, and not to seek support from others.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a lively and exciting year, but one which will take much ingenuity, forbearance and sound judgment to shift the activities into progressive and gainful channels. Sudden upheavals, surprising undercurrents and tenacious obstructions must be wisely met.

A child born on this day while skillful, industrious and original will be confronted by stubborn obstacles and impediments.

For Monday, December 14

Monday's astrological forecast is for a rather contradictory state of affairs. Although there is promise of high ambitions, with the ability and power to attain them, assisted by the benefices of Lady Luck, yet there may be definite opposition or want of support from superiors, elders, and the public or community. Look not for outside cooperation but forge ahead with prudence and caution.

Those whose birthday it is may be promised splendid opening for fulfillment of cherished hopes and ambitions, but these may be furthered by good fortune and luck rather than the aid or encouragement of those in influential positions. Beware of deception or intrigue from these and forge ahead with personal initiatives, resourcefulness and good judgment and the goal may be happily reached.

A child born on this day may be efficient, ambitious, enjoy much personal popularity and prestige, yet may encounter antagonism from those in power.

FBI FIRES AT ORDER TO BATES

Says Former Police Chief In Work 'Necessary, Essential' To War Effort.

the state board's program, and that the Mansfield commission can on its own option extend Bates' leave.

Biddle and Tom Woodard, other member of the board, vehemently denied there had been any political or other outside influence brought to bear in an effort to force Bates resumption of duties as police chief. W. C. Mansfield, third member of the commission, resigned after the Dec. 1 meeting in compliance with federal regulations governing his new job as examiner for the federally-created area rent office here.

The full text of the FBI statement from Washington follows:

"Release will be granted Meade K. Bates, former police chief of Mansfield, if it becomes necessary for him to request it in order to retain his seniority and pension rights. Bates took leave of absence from his city position to accept appointment as a FBI special agent after Pearl Harbor. He is one of the graduates of the FBI national police academy (Little Rock, Ark.) who accepted invitation to meet the war emergency needs of the bureau.

"The Mansfield Civil Service commission has given notice, however, that Bates must return to his job as police chief by Jan. 14 or forfeit seniority and pension rights.

"The FBI feels that Mr. Bates is doing a necessary and essential work in connection with the war effort. If it becomes necessary for him to request his release because the Mansfield Civil Service commission will not grant him a further extension of leave we will have no alternative except to grant the request."

The bureau's position, transmitted by the Associated Press, is interpreted as being in direct conflict with the attitude of the local commission.

RECEIPTS UP

Yule Buying Helps Put Sales Tax at Higher Mark.

Christmas buying during the final week of November boosted Richland county sales tax recipes above preceding weeks, but the total for the final week of the month was still $2,000 below the corresponding period last year, State Treasurer Don H. Ebright's report showed today.

The decline from last year's figures, however, was general throughout the state, only three counties, Lucas, Summit, and Montgomery, showing marked increases. Even such centers of war activity as Marion, Erie, and Trumbull counties reported declines.

Richland county collections for the final week of November totaled $12,575 as against $14,666 in the corresponding week last year. Richland county receipts to Dec. 1 amounted to $493,553, a drop of $158,991 below last year.

STOCK MARKET RETAINS ITS EQUILIBRIUM

Individual Income Reaches New Record Peak During Month of October.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market maintained its equilibrium fairly well in today's early proceedings.

Up fractions at a quiet opening were Chrysler, Boeing, Montgomery Ward and United Aircraft. U. S. Steel and Radio Corp., dipped a shade.

Commission houses, hopeful that some of the mounting public funds may find their way into securities, noted the department of commerce compilation indicating income payments to individuals reached a new monthly peak of $10,279,000,000 in October.

There was wishful thinking in Wall Street regarding the possibility of better market action when the treasury's $9,000,000,000 December financing is completed.

U. S. TREASURY REPORT

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The treasury balance Dec. 10 was $5,308,160,999.78.

WANTS CONTROL

M'Nary Advocates Congress Check On Government Spending.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Firmer congressional control over operations of government agencies which do not obtain their funds by direct appropriations was advocated today by Senate Republican Leader McNary of Oregon.

McNary told reporters that when the new congress is asked to expand the borrowing and lending authority of the reconstruction finance corporation by $5,000,000,000 he will support an amendment requiring agencies which draw their funds from the RFC to estimate expenditures in advance instead of reporting after actual expenditures.

P. T. A. Program Planned—"Defense" will be the theme for the Senior high school Parent-Teacher association meeting Monday at 7:45 p. m. in the school auditorium when boys of the vocational classes will tell about their shop work and the items they are making for the national defense program. Special music has been arranged in keeping with the theme. Probate Judge Stuart H. Cramer will speak on "The Child's Charter in War Time." Mrs. C. A. McClure is program chairman.

Change Meetings — Members of the Amma club will meet hereafter at 7 p. m. Mondays in the Mansfield-Leland hotel instead of Saturday noons as has been the custom. At the first Monday evening meeting, Dec. 14, Gerald Miner, Mansfield sailor, will relate his experiences when his ship was torpedoed in September and he finally was rescued. Club directors voted the meeting time change to insure larger attendance. P. A. English, secretary, explained in announcing Monday's meeting.

Don M. White Decorators Continue Work In Absence of Mr. White

Startling Effects Are Achieved By an Expert Staff

Love of home and things to make it ever more, beautiful, more satisfying, more charming, lies deep rooted in every American's heart.

This year, when we'll all be spending added hours by our firesides, when we'll be entertaining "at home" more often in lieu of less driving, the appearance of each home takes on new significance.

Of course you'll want your home to provide the perfect setting for you as host and hostess—to take on a certain marked personality that echoes your very own.

But dramatic decorating effects are not effortlessly pulled out of a hat. They are the result of studied planning . . . of ingenious artistry and the workmanship of those versed in the profession of interior deporation.

Such service is available at the House of Don M. White, Inc., located at 14 North Walnut street. Although Mr. White is now engaged in defense work, Mrs. White and a capable staff of workmen are continuing the same decorating service as before. In fact, the staff is entirely unaltered, with the exception of Mr. White.

At a time when it is difficult to replace furniture or add an occasional piece for a "change" in your home, an effect of newness can be achieved by upholstering, restyling, and slip covering old pieces, thus making homes more attractive and more livable.

At Whites, beauty of material and fine craftsmanship are allied to keep all interior decoration free from ornate design, using color to create restful or arresting moods.

The Don M. White decorators and craftsmen have worked in scores of homes in Mansfield, Galion, Shelby and other communities in this section of the state.

The workrooms are modernly equipped to completely change the style of the interior of your home.

White's take pride in custom made furniture of luxury and simple elegance. And in "custom" work, it is possible to bring into play all the experience of the skilled decorator in working with hand loomed fabrics and hand tooled furniture. The result may well be termed a "masterpiece."

Whites have been achieving remarkable success in decorating boudoirs. Custom tailored bedspreads, quilted glo sheen upholstered head boards, cornice boards to match drapery, each beautiful in itself—each planned to add beauty to the other—are feature effects easily accomplished by White decorators.

In fact, suiting the decoration of your bedroom to your personality, thus achieveing real individuality, Mrs. White says, is an arresting aim at the shop. She is particularly enthusiastic about Hollywood beds upholstered in leather.

Although White decorators have countless ideas to offer, they are happy to combine their suggestions with that of the customer, Mrs. White explained, and fusing the two, progress from there to the concluded plan.

Whites is open for appointments for estimates in the home. You may phone 1101-6 for appointments. And surprising as it may be, Whites service in interior decoration is complimentary.

Mrs. M. Don White is shown in a corner of the display room at the shop which she is managing while Mr. White works for defense.

Construction Evaluation Shows Increase

The valuation of construction in northern and eastern Ohio during the first 10 months of the year reached a total of $300,332,000, according to figures released yesterday by Marc Wayne, district manager of Dodge Reports, the daily construction news service. This figure is a sizeable increase over the $218,571,000 total recorded during the corresponding period of 1941.

The chief gain this year has been in the field of non-residential construction, Mr. Wayne stated, emphasizing that Dodge reports are based on actual contracts awarded instead of on building permits. In this field the total soared from $76,943,000 last year to $170,343,000 this year.

Public works and utilities, at $58,729,000 this year, was substantially ahead of last year's total of $46,686,000. Residential building, however, which is severely restricted by war priorities, is below the 1941 total, Mr. Wayne stated.

MEETING MEAT SHORTAGES TO BE DISCUSSED

Third Health For Victory Club Meeting Planned For Next Week.

Third in a series of "Health For Victory" club meetings will be held Friday, Dec. 18 at 2 p. m. in the Westinghouse auditorium. This meeting will deal with the currently important problem of meat shortages and is being arranged by Mrs. Pauline Oberlin, Home Economist of Ohio Public Service for homemakers planning meals for employes of the Barnes Manufacturing company, Hughes-Keenan company, Ideal Electric company and Ohio Public Service.

In this meeting on meat, Mrs. Oberlin will discuss and demonstrate the two general methods of cooking meat . . . with dry and with moist heat.

In demonstrating cooking procedures she will emphasize the many ways that meat can be extended or stretched to go farther by preparing it in combination with other foods. The use of these extenders is a practice that every housewife should adopt in getting full usage of meat and in realizing the best results in taste and tenderness of less expensive cuts.

This is the regular monthly meeting of the local "Health For Victory" club which is part of the national organization designed to bring better eating habits to the people in this country with particular emphasis on proper nutrition for this country's "soldiers of the assembly lines."

Now that meat rationing is in the offing and voluntary rationing is upon us, Mrs. Oberlin points out that it is imperative that every wartime homemaker know how to buy and cook all cuts of meat. Many of us have neglected using some of the less expensive cuts of meat because they take a little more time and care in preparation. It now becomes our duty to our families and our country to use a variety of meat cuts and to cook them properly due to accelerated demands placed on this nation's meat supply.

Homemakers are urged to attend this important meeting to learn more about the nutritional value of meat, and to receive the new meal planning guide for the month of January. These guides contain important day-to-day menu planning information in addition to numerous lunch box suggestions.
